

Position: Intern—Software Project Management

Location: New York or Ann Arbor, MI

HookLogic is a software firm (SaaS) based in New York City, with offices in Ann Arbor and the United Kingdom. Our Incentive Manager and Merchant AdManager products are gaining traction with large eCommerce companies. They have a proven record of generating additional, measurable revenue on our clients' websites, despite a tough economic climate. To learn more visit <http://www.hooklogic.com>

What We're Looking For

We are looking for motivated students interested in learning about the software industry at a successful startup company. HookLogic offers the opportunity to make a competitive wage working with seasoned professionals, out of our downtown New York offices. We seek individuals who thrive in a fast-paced, rapidly evolving web-based environment. We are looking for innovative thinkers who can be interested in learning the business, including product development, project management and QA.

Desired Qualifications:

- Pursuing Bachelor/Master degree in business, CS, HCI, or other related field
- Desire and talent to grow your career with a web-based software startup
- Outstanding organizational skills, and proven ability to deliver results
- Independent computer/web site-related projects or achievements are a plus
- Experience with any of the following helpful:
 - Project management experience
 - Front-end UI development experience
 - Strong understanding of software usability and visual design principles
 - Experience with site testing, including browser compatibility and accessibility testing
 - Familiarity with W3C compliance requirements
 - HTML, ASP.NET, AJAX, JavaScript, C#, Database, CSS, XML

If you feel you are the right candidate, please send your resume to careers@hooklogic.com.